Press Picks Peerless Panel of Pigskin Prognosticators

Something in the way of predicting the winner in football games will be launched this fall by The Campbell Press. A panel of six local "experts" will attempt with the aid of individual crystal balls or by other means to pick the winners of ten games each Saturday during football season.

Great care was taken by The Press in the picking of the panel so that it would include a representative group of individuals.

The list includes a housewife-business woman (Mrs. Elaine Carey of Sunshine Card and Toy); a teen-age leader (Benny Lujan, president of the Campbell High student body); a leading educator (Sam Reed, principal of Campbell High); two prominent local merchants (L. E. (Bill) Means, Campbell Drugs and Pete Lico, Towne Pride Mart); and, of course, the representative of the sports staff of The Press, Marvin Moore, 10-year old sports columnist.

Each week The Press will submit a list of ten games to each member of the panel. The "experts" will then make their individual predictions and each week The Press will publish the prediction of each member of the panel. In addition, standings of each member (i.e. percentage of rights and wrongs will be shown so that our readers will know which one is the "most expert" of the "experts".

So meet your experts. We trust you will become better acquainted with them as the season progresses. They will get their feet wet for the first time next week.

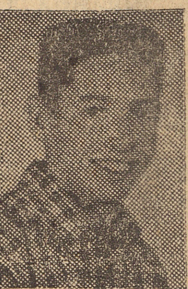
The Press predicts that there will be some surprises as the season progresses both as to upsets on the gridiron and on the panel.

Mrs. DICK (Elaine) CAREY: Our only woman member is a native of Butte, Montana, but grew up and attended school in Ogden and Salt Lake City. She was employed by 20th Century Fox before her marriage to Dick.

E. CAREY

The Careys opened their store, Sunshine Card and Toy in the Campbell Shopping Center, 349 N. Winchester, just a year ago this week. Mrs. Carey modestly lays no claim to being an expert but admits she likes to see the games. She also expects to get considerable aid from her two sons, Dick, 13, and David, 9.

BENNY LUJAN: Campbell High Student Body president; Benny was tabbed "Just Call Me Lucky" last year because of his phenomenal prize-winning streak. He picked up almost every award for salesmanship offered at high school. It remains to be seen if he will carry this lucky streak over to his weekly predictions.



BEN LUJAN

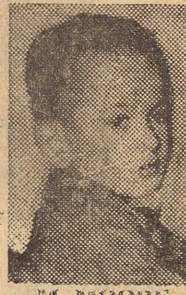
Benny has been active in sports at school, playing on the 30's in both basketball and football and on the varsity baseball team. He is a senior and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Lujan, 3240 Glenneden Way. How his choices stack up against Principal Sam Reed should create considerable interest both on and off the campus.

L. E. (BILL) MEANS: Co-owner of the Campbell Drugs and Pharmacy in the Campbell Shopping Center, Bill has lived in Campbell for 12 years and has taken a leading part in civic affairs during that time, serving on the school board for six years. He has been intensely interested in sports since his college days at the University of California where he was a member of the Cal track team. He was graduated from the university in 1928.

BILL MEANS

He has long been recognized as Cal's number one booster in the Santa Clara Valley but, although prejudiced in his viewpoints, is not expected to pick the Bears to win every game. Bill has served as trainer of Campbell High football team for 10 years. He seldom misses a football game whether prep or college during the season.

MARVIN MOORE: Our Marvin, considered to be the youngest full fledged sports writer in the country has not missed a week for his popular "Low Down on Sports" since he started writing it more than a year ago. Marvin, now 10, attends St. Lucy's School in Campbell and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Al Moore, owners of Cambrian Market. The Moores live at 1251 McBain.

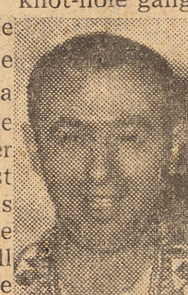


M. MOORE

Rated as an expert in general, (his specialties are hard top racing and baseball) Marv carries the colors of The Press into the weekly battle with his fellow experts.

PETE LICO: Busier than a bird dog as he gets his remodeled and greatly expanded store, the Towne Pride Mart, 515 E. Campbell Ave., once more in operation after the disastrous fire of last June, Pete is finding the time to serve on our football panel because his interest in sports (football particularly) is known throughout the community.

A graduate of San Jose High with Charles (Chuck) Taylor, head coach of Stanford, Pete has been a follower of Stanford's destinies ever since he was a member of the "knot-hole gang" of San Jose.

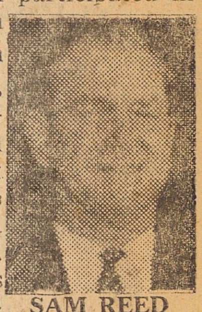


PETE LICO

He recalls that he never missed a Stanford game as a youngster and his interest in Stanford's record on the gridiron is still acute but we doubt if he will allow sentiment to dominate his predictions to any great extent.

SAMUEL P. REED, principal of Campbell High School. A graduate of Campbell High as well as San Jose State and Stanford, the popular principal has long taken a keen interest in sports. He is starting his third year as Campbell High principal coming back to his alma mater after serving as principal in the Santa Cruz system.

Keen rivalry between the sports-minded principal and Benny Lujan, student body president, is expected as the season progresses. Sam participated in sports at both Campbell High and San Jose, winning his varsity letter in basketball at State and also picking up a baseball letter.



SAM REED

He received his M.A. from Stanford and may have a little trouble in weighing sentiment against facts.

The Press feels fortunate in obtaining such a distinguished group to act as its panel of experts during the football season.

So there you are. Let's have at it.

And let the ball bounce where it will.—G.V.

Two Campbell Women Die in Train Crash Early Wednesday Morning

Tragedy struck swiftly at four Campbell women cannery workers early Wednesday morning when the car in which they were riding to work in San Jose crashed into the westbound Southern Pacific commuter train on the San Jose-Los Gatos Road crossing just north of Hamilton Avenue. Two of the women were killed and the other two seriously injured.

Pronounced dead on arrival at County Hospital were Mrs. Rosalie A. Gamble, 67, a widow living at 822 Hazel Avenue; and Mrs. Oliva Hammons, 40, of 93 Gilman Avenue, both of Campbell.

In serious condition at County Hospital are Antoinette Kacatta, 26, of 48 E. Rosemary Lane, and Charlotte Dain, 54, of 828 Hazel Avenue, Campbell. Both women are expected to recover.

The four women, who had been riding together since July, were on their way to work at U. S. Products when the accident occurred. Apparenly they did no see the train or hear the signal until too late and crashed headon into the side of the engine. The front end of the car was completely demolished, by impact, killing the occupants in the front seat.

Funeral services for Mrs. Hammon will be held today, September 12, at 2:30 p.m. in Campbell Memorial Chapel. A native of Arkansas, she lived in Campbell for the past five years.

She leaves her husband, Joseph Hammons, and a son, Carol Bratton, both of Campbell; her father, Ezera Bratton of Lesley, Arkansas; two sisters, Lucille Miles of Oxnard, Calif., and Mary Redman of Harriet, Arkansas; five brothers, Velmar Bratton of Arkansas, John Bratton of Idaho, Eugene Bratton of Texas, Charles Bratton of Tennessee, and Jesse Bratton of Oklahoma.

Her body will be taken to Lesley, Arkansas for burial.

Final rites for Mrs. Rosalie Gamble are pending at Campbell Memorial Chapel. She was the mother of Mrs. Elvis Bias of Cambrian Park and Mrs. Louis Morgan of Campbell.

Other suvivers are two sisters, Chloe Lewallen of Salinas, and Bertha Ward of Sunnyvale; two brothers, James Armstrong and Perry Armstrong, both of San Jose; five grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren.

Cops' Clean Cars Create Clash

Whether Campbell firemen should wash the two police cars of the City on city time touched off quite a set-to at the Council meeting Tuesday.

The matter came to a head when Councilman Richard Morton questioned the bill for police car washing for one month submitted by Ken Roberts Union Station. He noted that there were 15 car wash jobs during the month amounting to $30. (Roberts said later that there were only 11 jobs totalling $22.)

But Morton's suggestion that perhaps the firemen could help the city budget by washing the police cars when they washed the firetrucks did not meet with enthusiastic response from Fire Chief Jack Scott. The chief indicated that he might lose one or two of his three firemen if such a directive came out.

Morton said this would be a good thing to find out. He then moved that the firemen be ordered to do the work on city time as long as it didn't conflict with their regular duties.

But his motion died for want of a second.

Other members of the Council thought that it should be put on a voluntary basis and Mayor John M. Chargin told the chief to find out how the firemen felt on the matter.

Morton made it clear that he was not criticizing the need of the many wash jobs for the police cars but he thought the taxpayers. the mutual bosses of both the police and firemen) should be considered.

Get New Names

Four streets in Campbell have new names as of today.

Although the unprecedented rechristening event as far as Campbell was concerned, took place without flair, fuss or fanfare, the action did set some sort of a record.

In addition to marking the first time a street has had its monicker changed in the history of the City, the action of the City Council on Tuesday which gave the streets their new names probably was the first in California under new legislation that went into effect on Wednesday.

City Attorney Joseph Bonacina informed the Council Tuesday that the new laws allowed the Council to change street names by resolution. And that's exactly what the City Dads did, acting on the request of Charles Engdol of the construction company that is developing the Latimer Park area.

As of today, Agana Way is now Bradbury Drive; Guam Way is Radford Drive; Tinian Way is Coventry Drive and Saipan Way is Warwick Drive.

West Valley Hospital Board Names Consultant

August W. Koenig, of Palo Alto, was named consultant of the West Valley Hospital District, by the board of directors. His first project will bring the 1955 survey of the Stanford Reasearch up to date.

Koenig has been consultant of about 20 hospitals in the state, including Mt. Eden, Tracy, Santa Cruz and many others.

Ralph Fanning, 36, 14898 Clara St., Los Gatos and Mich Franceshini, 21, 14125 Capri Drive, were slightly injured when their cars collided on Winchester Road near Capri Drive Tuesday evening.

"CM" Factions Plan Talks

A committee of property owners of Campbell's industrial park who have opposed the adoption of the highly controversial "Controlled Manufacturing" zoning for their area plans to meet with a Planning Commission committee in an attempt to make the proposed "CM" more palatable, it was reported this week.

Because the two groups will probably be unable to meet until the latter part of next week, it is expected that any discussion on "CM" will be postponed by the City Planners to the next meeting when they meet next Tuesday at the City Hall.

Heading the property owners group is Lynn Beatty with Mark J. Thomas and Warren Brown serving with him and R. L. Townsend acting as alternate. John M Burnett, San Jose attorney, who has represented the property owners in their battle will continue to act as their advisor in any compromise negotiations, it has been reported.

Planning Commissioners Sam O'Brien, James Tomlinson, Homer Hyde and Richard Salice comprise the Commission's committee. At the hearing on September 3 on the rewording of the ordinance, it was suggested that perhaps a compromise could be worked out.

At Tuesday's meeting, the Commission is also expected to hear a report from a committee studying the rezoning of area on the San Jose-Los Gatos Road. Commissioner Kenneth Priestley heads the committee.

Scheduled also is the public hearing for a parking variance for Jimmy De Maria who plans to construct a new building on the site of the present Jimmy's Shoe Shop on Campbell Ave. DeMaria is also submitting his plans for the building for "S" zone approval.

City Council Favors Route "B"

In one of the briefest Council meetings in recent months, the City Council passed a resolution supporting Route B of the Junipero Serra Freeway with the exception of Route VO1, a portion of Route B roughly parallel to Dutard Ave.

The action was recommended by Councilman Myron Fairchild, who has been the city's representative at the various hearings that have been held on the matter.

In other actions, the Council:

1. Requested Fire Chief Scott to bring in an estimate of the cost and requirements of the three new fire stations recommended by the Planning Commission.

2. Proclaimed September 28-29 as White Cane Day on behalf of the Campbell Lions Club.

3. Referred to the various department heads the request of Robert Mason, head of county communications, for an estimate of the city's communication needs for the present and future.

4. Gave the first reading to a new house-moving ordinance which has been under study for some time. The ordinance simplifies the procedures required of house movers and is based on a Mountain View ordinance covering the same subject.

Assisting in the drafting of the ordinances was Leonard Anderson, head of a house-moving concern and mayor of Mountain View.

5. Adopted the ordinance that changed the zone of the property of Richard Salice on W. Rincon Ave. from single-family residential to multiple dwellings.

6. Was informed that fines for the month of August totalled $2,493.42.

7. Allotted the Campbell Chamber of Commerce $1,750 of the total request of $3500.

It was pointed out that the $1750 not allowed was for work yet to be done and it was not the policy of the Council to allocate funds in that manner.

8. Received a warrant for $6,356.37 from Sanitation District No. 4 for sewer rentals as of July 31, 1957.

9. Heard a report from City Engineer Mark E. Thomas on the engineering services furnished the improvement of Dell Ave. property owners.

For Whom the Bell Tolls - - -

When Campbell and Camden High and Moreland and Cambrian elementary schools open next Monday, the new school year for more than 15,000 students from kindergarten through high school in this area will be launched officially.

A record breaking 6,388 enrollment was on hand when the 12 elementary schools of Campbell district opened for business on Tuesday of this week, William C. Henley, superintendent, reported. This is 562 more than on the opening day last year or about a nine per cent hike.

One new school (Parkway, 165 Saratoga Ave.) opened this fall for the first time and another new school Blackford, at Norman and Willow St.) is slated to be ready by Christmas.

The superintendent noted in the opening day enrollment figures that 250 students that will attend Parkway when it opens have been registered separately.

The superintendent also pointed out that five schools (Campbell, because of Monroe School taking all eight grades for the first time); San Tomas, because of a kindergarten shift to Quito; Hamilton, because of the new Sherman Oaks school; and Dover, because of the new Blackford School) showed a drop in enrollment from last year.

The breakdown of enrollment for all 12 schools on the opening day was as follows (the 1956 figure is in paranthesis); Campbell 739 (863); Moorpark, 587 (497); San Tomas, 519 (522); Hamilton, 388 (415); Rosemary, 348 (286); Cypress, 606 (715); Quito, 562 (456); Cherry Lane, 460 (445); Dover, 519 (694); Monroe, 766 (618); Sherman

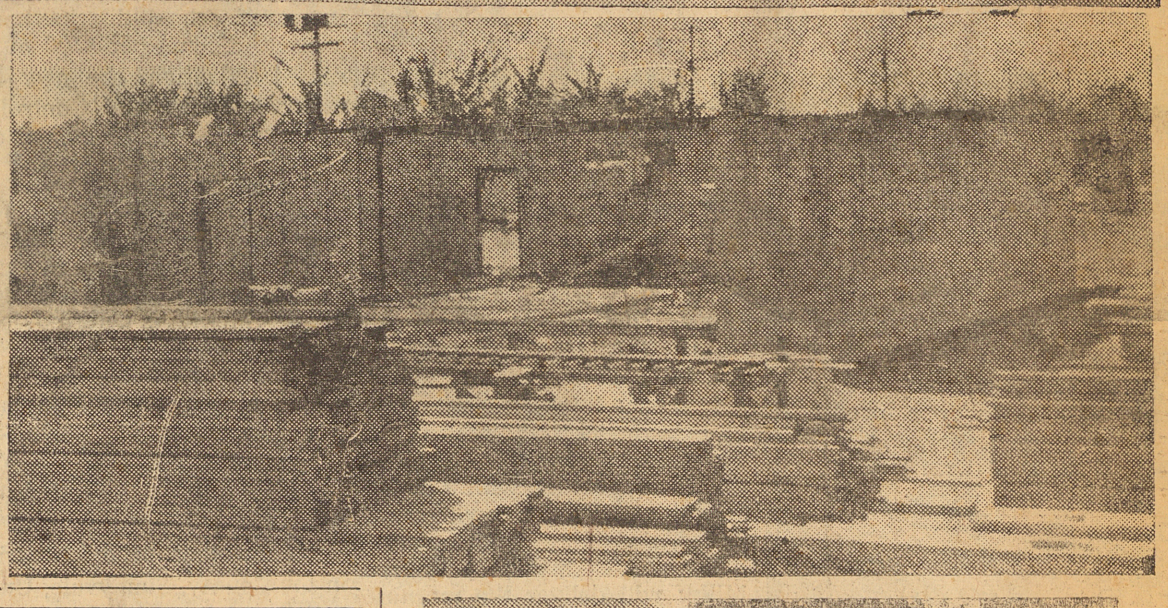
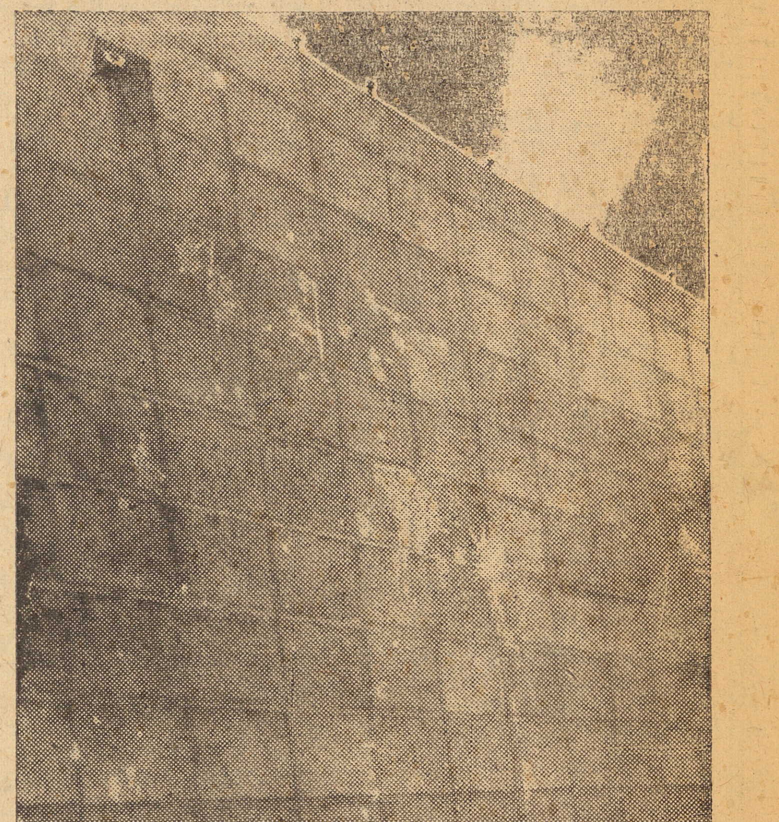
It Takes a Lot of Schools to Keep Up . . .





THIS COMMUNITY'S BIGGEST BUSINESS . . . School bells were ringing in earnest this week in the Campbell area and on Monday when all the schools will be in session some 15,000 youngsters will be in classrooms from kindergarten through high school. The top picture shows the students milling around the corridors of St. Lucy's Catholic School waiting for classes to start. The next picture shows part of the construction that is taking place at the Blackford School, the Campbell district's newest school slated to open at Christmas time. The other picture shows the mars on one of the walls at the Blackford School left by youthful vandals who several weeks ago tossed a mixture of lime on eight different walls. So far nothing has been found that will completely remove the scars.

New Church Plans Ground-Breaking Ceremony Sunday

Ground breaking ceremonies for construction of the first unit of the new Valley Neighborhood Church on the corner of Camden Ave. and San Jose-Los Gatos Road will be held at 3 p.m. Sunday.

The first unit of the church, which will be contemporary in design, will cost $35,000 and contain nearly 4500 square feet of floor space. The "U" shaped building will be of re-enforced concrete block and consist of a sanctuary seating 200, educational facilities, church offices, pastor's study, kitchen, and combined auditorium and social hall.

Irwin Johnson is the architect and Bridges Construction Company of San Jose the contractor. Plans call for the building to be completed by Christmas.

A master plan adopted by the congregation includes an auditorium seating 800 as well as extensive space for Sunday school and youth work. The remainder of the two-acre tract owned by the church will be used as a recreation field for the youth of the community. Tentative plans call for the addition of a swimming pool in the future.

Sunday's services will mark the beginning of the second year for the Rev. Roy Peterson who became the first pastor of the church when it was organized 14 months ago. For the past year, the congregation has been meeting temporarily in the Adventist Church at Fourth and Rincon, Campbell.

New Church to Hold Rally Day

Church of the Nazarene, newly organized in Campbell last May, has scheduled Sunday, September 15, for its first big Rally Day under the leadership of its pastor, the Reverend Paul Miller. The temporary meeting place of the congregation is the Scout Hall, Third and Grant Streets.

Everyone interested is invited to attend the rally which has programmed a full day of events, beginning with Sunday school at 9:45 a.m. with Paul Skiles and his trombone furnishing the music. Reverend Miller will deliver the morning worship sermon at 11 a.m. which will be followed by a pot-luck dinner at 12 noon.

A new Youth program begins at 6:30 p.m. and the evening gospel service at 7:30 p.m. will feature a showing of a film, "My Right and Cause," a story of the Bible in Korea.

Building Permits in Campbell Keep Up Record-Making Pace in August

Building continued at a record pace in Campbell during August, far exceeding the same month last year, W. L. (Bud) Morser, building inspector has reported. A total of 37 permits were issued in August for $316,433 compared to only 10 in August, 1956 for $11,452.

Home building topped the list of permits with 22 permits issued for single family dwellings. Of the 22, Trojan Construction Co. led the way with 16 permits for $173,488. The permits were for the homes located on Ensenada Drive and Villarita Drive in the Los Ranchitos area were for either $11,370 or $$11,058 each.

Dura Style Home for the Latimer Park subdivision received permits for four single-dwellings on Agana Way and Tininian Way. Other permits for dwellings went to T. D. Lyons for $15,660 at 781 N. Monica Lane and to Fred Musco for $14,625 at 871 N. Monica Lane.

Sanitation District No. 4 topped all permits with $25,780 for an office building on the Sunny Oaks Ave. extension in Campbell's industrial park.

Following closely was the permit issued to Albert and Henry Frank for a car wash concern at Latimer and Winchester. The permit was for $18,000 and one to West Valley American Legion for a cluhouse for $7,500 on Parr Ave.

Among the other permits issued was one for a swimming pool for Robert Wilson on Union Ave., for $2,800.

Among 53 Districts

Both Moreland and Campbell Schools Get Loan Deferments from State

Both Moreland and Campbell were among the 53 California school districts that under a new law will be granted deferments in loan repayments to the State amounting to almost $1 million in the fiscal year 1957-58, according to Robert C. Kirkwood, State Controller.

Kirkwood reports that when the combined tax rates for state loan repayment and for eligible issues of school district bonds exceed 45 cents per $100 of assessed valuation, the new law requires the State Controller, upon petition of the school district, to defer a part of the annual loan repayment.

Original repayment billed to the Campbell district for the current year amounted to $125,061.82. Under the new law, $18,893.44 will be deferred, leaving a payment of $106,168.38 to be collected this year. For Moreland the original payment was $26,365.83 of which $1,181.37 was deferred, leaving $25,184.46 to be collected this year.

Three other school districts in the County, Sunnyvale, Union and Whisman, were included in the 53 California school districts granted deferments.

"The law applies to school districts which have received state loans under the State School Building Loan Program of 1952," said Kirkwood. "For the most part, districts benefiting from the legislation are rapidly growing school districts which have received aid under both the 1949 and the 1952 State School Building Aid Programs, resulting in sharp increases in their local tax rates for bond interest and redemption, and for State loan repayment."

Kirkwood emphasized that the amounts by which repayments are reduced remain a liability for the school districts. The deferred amounts are added to repayments for the following year, when they may again be deferred in accordance with the formula established by the new law.

The State Controller said that the relief obtained by school districts from the law varies widely during the current year. Deferred amounts range from $568 for the Topanga School District in Los Angeles County to $130,925 for the Mt. Diablo Unified School District in Contra Costa County.

Computation of deferred repayment is made only upon request of the school district, which this year had to file by August 1. In future years the application must be filed with the State Controller by July 1.

Of the 105 school districts which filed this year, 53 received loan deferments. In the case of the other 52, either the combination of their bond redemption and loan repayment tax was less than the 45-cent rate, or the districts were ineligible under the law for some other reasons.

Club Honors Five Local Cergymen

School Opening

Oaks, 331 (306); Parkway, 313 (0); Blackford, 250 (0).

Superintendent Henley said that opening day went off smoothly. He mentioned that the closing of Hamilton Ave because of work on the new freeway inconvenienced travel slightly to Hamilton School but otherwise there was no hitch in the proceedings. He added that Parkway, the newest school, opened on schedule but that a number of construction details still remain to be cleared up.

A faculty of 68 at Camden High and 66 at Campbell High will handle the 1800 students expected at Campbell and 1600 at Camden this fall. Camden High for the first time will have a senior class and 26 of the 37 new teachers in the district have been assigned there.

New teachers of the district met on Tuesday and the entire staff gathered on Wednesday. A reception was held Wednesday evening at Camden High honoring the new teachers.

In the meantime this week, Campbell's two parochial schools (St. Lucy's and the Seventh Day Adventist) were into their second week of the fall term. St. Lucy's opened last week with 350 students, a big increase over last year as for the first time all eight grades will be housed in the school. The SDA school had an enrollment of 67.

Opening next Monday, the same time as the high school, will be Cambrian and Moreland. The four schools of Moreland are expecting an enrollment of more than 2000 while the four schools of Cambrian anticipate 2650. There are 16 new teachers at Moreland and 30 at Cambrian.

Registration for the fall semester will be held at San Jose State College on September 19 and 20 with classes beginning on Monday, September 23. Enrollment at California's oldest and largest state college is expected to near the 12,000-mark as the institution begins its 101st year.

A meeting of the faculty now numbering more than 700, will be held at 9 a.m. on Monday, September 16. Orientation of new faculty members and new students will be held on September 16, 17 and 18. Personnel tests will also be given from September 16 to 18 to students who have not previously taken them.

Limited students, those taking six units or less, will register from 5 to 9 p.m. on Friday, September 20, or from 9 a.m. until noon on Saturday, September 21.

Two new buildings, a three-story addition to the science building and a three-story classroom building, will be ready for occupancy when the college year begins. A new administration building will be completed about November 1. A new million-dollar cafeteria is under construction and several other buildings are in the planning stage. The college is also in the process of acquiring six and one-half blocks of land for campus expansion.

New Fish and Poultry Store Opens at Holiday

A new fish and poultry store is now open in the Holiday Shopping Center at Saratoga Avenue and Payne (across from the Moreland School), according to N. Colombo, owner of the shopping center.

The store will be operated by Joe Gagliano, 4149 Mitzi Drive, who was formerly with the Full Moon fish route on the west side. He is a former Monterey fisherman and both Colombo and the new manager emphasize that the store is being solely operated for the convenience of the west valley people.

'Foreign Correspondent' Reports to Press on Three More Stop-Overs

Editors Note: This is another in the series of reports from Virginia Grattan, who is now on her way home to Campbell after more than two years spent in Europe. Miss Grattan, a former Campbell High and San Jose State student, is the daughter of Mrs. Roy Archibald of Campbell.

She is returning to her home via an around-the-world cruise (by plane mostly) and has been sending reports to her paper on the various stop-overs she is making. This one deals with Beirut, Teheran and Karachi. —G.V.

VIRGINIA GRATTAN
. . . On Way Home

Beirut - Teheran - Karachi

By Virginia Grattan

August 4, leave Istanbul—6:15 P.M. arrive Beirut—9:25 P.M.—600 air miles.

Beirut, (Beyrouth), Lebanon is a port city on the Mediterranean about 150 miles north of Jerusalem. Famous for its Cedar of Lebanon and ancient ruins at Boalbek. Lebanon is a dry, sunny country facing the blue Mediterranean and divided by high mountains from the deserts of Syria to the North and East, and bordering Israel on the South.

Beirut is "Foreign"

Beirut is really "foreign". On the streets you see women with veils completely covering their heads and faces, Turks wearing the fez (now forbidden in Turkey), and Arabs with their desert turbans. The people in their strange costumes hurry past and the air is full of intrigue. Narrow side streets are crowded with bazaars. This is the Middle East.

Here I discovered that I was the foreigner. Everywhere I went people stopped and stared. Women are not numerous on the streets and an American girl is a real rarity. I spent an hour down town walking around and then went back to the hotel partly out of distrust and partly out of revulsion. I am not yet conditioned to looking at the dirt and poverty of these unfortunate countries.

On To Teheran

August 6, leave Beirut 11:00 A.M., arrive Teheran 4:15 P.M. —895 air miles

We were supposed to leave Beirut at 8:10 A.M. This meant getting up at 6:00 A.M. to have breakfast and getting the car to the airport at 6:30. It is necessary to check in an hour before departure. But the plans was delayed. We finally got off about 11:00 A.M. We circled over Beirut and the Mediterranean for several minutes gaining altitude.

Leaving the blue waters of the Mediterranean behind, we bounded the mountains of Lebanon, winged over the scorching desert of Syria and Iraq, over Baghdad, over the muddy green ribbons of the Euphrates and Tigris river to the bare burning mountains of Iran. It was a dry, hot day and the heating pushing up from the mountains gave us a rough ride before we landed at Teheran.

It was nearly evening when I got to the hotel having lost an hour flying and nearly another hour in customs and driving to the hotel. I ate a piece of watermelon and went to bed.

Plans Changed

The next day I had planned to see Teheran but my plans were changed. The desk clerk said this was a religious festival today and that it was not safe for a foreigner to be out in the streets. He said the crowds sometimes become fanatic and that the hotel would not take the responsibility for anything that might happen. I went back to my room and read about the city I could not see.

I got a glimpse of the city the next day driving to the airport, but there was no indication that this was once the great Persia which ruled half of Asia and spread its culture from Egypt to India. There were only wide streets, plastered dwellings with high walls around them, people washing clothes in a ditch by the road, and hot parched mountains.

—o—

Then Karachi

August 8, leave Teheran, 11:00 A.M., arrive Karachi 4:00 P.M.

The flight originally scheduled for 6:30 A.M. didn't get off until 11:00 A.M. While waiting at the airport I talked with an American couple who were Baptist missionaries returning to India after a year's leave in the U. S. This was to be their last 5 years in India before retirement. A year of comfortable living in the U.S. made it hard to return to half civilized central India. They would be glad when the five years were up. The next day in Karachi I went sightseeing with my missionary friends and in the evening we took in a Danny Kaye movie.

Karachi is the capital of Pakistan, which was partitioned from India in 1947. Over 5 million migrated to Pakistan in the first big influx of Moslems to the new Moslem state. Refugees are still pouring over the border, giving Pakistan its number one problem of battling overpopulation.

Industrial City

Karachi itself is an industrial and port city. On the edge of the city you can drive for miles past rows of new, various sized factories producing textiles, plastics, chemicals, soda pop and assembling auto parts. Karachi is a port of call for ships from the Orient and from Europe, and important link with both East and West. Down town Karachi is jammed with shops, market places and some monumental buildings with Greek pillars left from the British era. There is the nicer section of town where the Embassies of different nations are located, near the residential section of big secluded homes. But the whole picture is one of sparseness, a dry, sparse vegetation and a dry sparse economy. Just over the hill from the big residential homes is the refugee area where thousands of migrating moslems sit, waiting for help in a horrible maze of make-shift shacks.

The street scene in Karachi is interesting and different. You no longer see the Arabian-looking people of the Middle East. They have been replaced by the tall, dark, willowy Indians clad in white. Occasionally a woman passes in her beautiful silk sari of light blue or any of a dozen soft pastel colors. There is a grace and casualness about the Indians, who seem to be never in a rush.

Many Modes of Travel

On the roads are many new kinds of conveyances; the usual bicycle in great numbers, donkey carts pulled by two tiny donkeys, camel carts pulled by one-hump camels with a ring of bells on both knees so that every step is a musical one, and small horse-drawn wagons. Taxis of the usual sort are available, and there are two variations, a bicycle with a brightly decorated box behind for passengers and a motor scooter with a cart for passengers. When all these conveyances begin scurrying down the street (on the left side) things get exciting.

In Karachi I spent much time in my hotel room where the great three-bladed fan on the ceiling circulated the warm air. I had developed some indigestion along the way which necessitated a diet of tea and toast for a while. In a day or so my health and my disposition improved.

My Missionary friends went on to Southern India and a day later I flew to New Delhi.

LOW DOWN ON SPORTS

By Marvin Moore

Hardtops (Continued)

This week I promised you I would talk about cars and drivers of the Hardtop circuit.

The cars can be any kind of car from the year 1936 through 1950. The engine can be altered —this includes boring to 30 cubic inches over stock displacement plus five cubic inches wear. The engines are permitted racing cams (any grind), porting and relieving. Racing heads, Wayne conversion kits, two carburetors.

Minor changes can be made to chassis for better saftey and handling. All cars have safety belts, shoulder harness and Roll Bars for safety. The drivers all have to wear a Crash Helmet. The safety belt keeps the driver from being thrown around in case of a crack-up. The Roll Bars keep the car from being smashed in on the driver in case it turns over. The shoulder harness serves the same purpose as the safety belt.

Inside the car everything is gutted out except the seat for the driver. The doors are welded shut and all glass taken out except the windshield which is safety glass. With all this safety protection the drivers can come through pileups, flips, etc. without too serious injuries. Of course there are exceptions but on the whole there are few serious accidents.

Pit Crews

Each driver has a pit crew to help work on the car and go out on the infield during the races. They watch their car intently during the race, because sometime during the heat of the race a driver wouldn't notice a tire showing excessive wear or other damage and they can flag him in before serious trouble.

Drivers Listed

Below is a list of a few drivers, Car No. and their hometown who race often at the local track. Next week I will give you their point standings and how they earn them.

BASEBALL STANDINGS

Milwaukee holds a 5½ game lead in the National League. New York holds 5½ in the American League. The San Francisco Seals 3½ game lead in the Pacific Coast League.

The California League is in their final standings.

1—Visalia
2—Modesto
3—Stockton
4—Reno
5—Salinas
6—Bakersfield
7—San Jose
8—Fresno

Guess I was wrong in predicting San Jose Josox as first, but they made a good showing. Visalia won 41 games and San Jose 31. Not so bad.

Billy Piecre of the American League and Warren Spahn of hte National are keeping even in pitching wins—19 each.

The San Francisco 49'ers are really rolling. Tittle's passes are given credit for a 27-21 win over the Chicago Cards.

Rotarians Hear from Local Football Mentors

Jim Muir, varsity football coach at Campbell High, and Junior Morgan, varsity coach at Camden High, gave members of the Campbell Rotary Club "pre-game dope" as they saw it at the Rotary meeting Monday.

Georoge Miskulin, head of the physical education department of the high school district and thus the boss of both the coaches, was the chairman of the meeting.

Camden and Campbell meet in league competition on the gridiron for the first time this year in the tough Santa Clara Valley Athletic League competition.

Pack 41 Holds Family Picnic

The family picnic of Steindorf School's Cub Pack 41 was judged a success when approximately 135 people turned out for the event held in Oak Dale Park on Labor Day.

Dads were chefs and prepared all food, insisting their wives sit back and relax while they barbecued hamburgers, mixed salads, and cooked chili beans and baked beans.

Cooks were "Skip" Nice, Bob Mercurio, Pat Vierra, Pete Peterson, and Syl Dossetti.

Blanche O'Brien was allowed to help pry the frozen hamburgers apart.

The group spent the day playing baseball and swimming and at the end of the day decided the picnic is to be an annual affair.

No Loss by Graduation

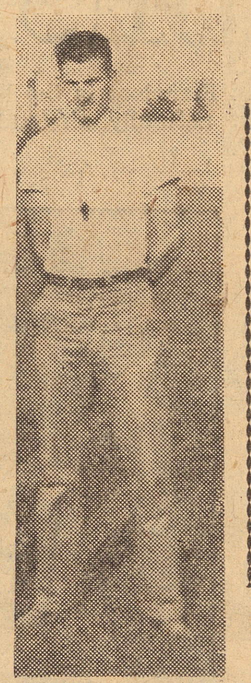
Camden High Varsity Begins First Year in SCVAL with All Veterans

Camden High varsity football coach, Junior Morgan, had 33 varsity football players report for physical examinations on Saturday out of the 60 that went under the doctor's scrutiny.

The gridders got down to work on Tuesday of this week as the Cougars began preparing in earnest for their tough schedule of games in the Santa Clara Valley Athletic League.

Morgan, who was a pass-catching star on the San Jose State Spartans, has one advantage over his fellow coaches in the league. He did not lose a single player by graduation last June.

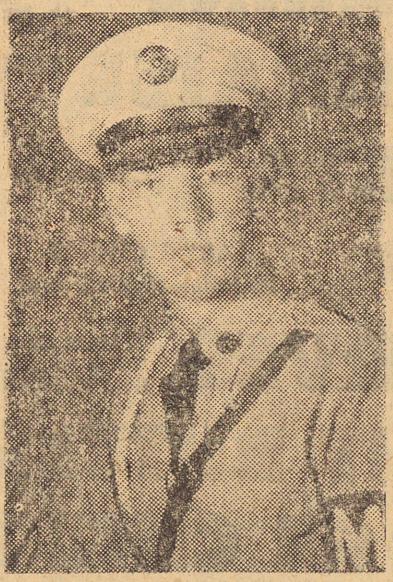
Last year Camden High had no senior class and last year Morgan was working with juniors, sophomores and freshmen. This year along with Sunnyvale, and Los Altos, Camden goes after the big boys in earnest. In 1956 the Cougars won the so-called "Big Three" crown but that's not the same as the rough-tough 10-team SCVAL. The Cougars tangle with Fremont in the SCVAL opener on September 27.



JUNIOR MORGAN
. . . Camden Coach

Coach Morgan reports that key players back from the team that defeated powerul Cubberly of Palo Alto are Gregg Rocha, Albert Okamoto, Jay Risso, Joe Rice and Jerry Ramos; (Ramos is the sprint champion of SCVAL) all backfield and Bill Murphy, Mel Profit, Mike Tomaselli, and Warren Riberts, linemen.

Some of the Cougar standouts of last year will be missing this year despite the fact that there was no graduation. These include, Carl Sorenson, transferred to Morgan Hill, and Karl Laucher, moved to Los Gatos and Armond de Lorenzo, moved to New York.



STATIONED IN ALASKA . . . Pvt. Elmer Holt, USA, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Holt, 219 S. Dillon Ave., has completed Military Police School at Fort Gordon, Georgia, and is now stationed at Fort Greeley, Alaska.

CHP Notes Rise in Violations by Truck Drivers

A noted increase in traffic violations by commercial vehicle drivers has made it necessary for the Califiornia Highway Patrol to emphasize increased enforcement effort.

Ten violations by commercial drivers were singled out by Patrol Commissioner B. R. Caldwell.

1. Excessive speed.
2. Excessive speed on downhill grades.
3. Following too closely.
4. Failure to maintain 500 feet intervals between commercial vehicles.
5. Failure to complete passing movements on uphill grades within the required one-quarter mile.
6. Exceeding limitations on driving hours.
7. Defective brake equipment.
8. Inadequate or improperly connected safety chains.
9. Defective or inadequate mufflers and exhaust systems.
10. Lack of vehicle registration and incomplete or incorrect vehicle registration.

Enforcement action against these violations will be executed in accordance with established enforcement policy, Caldwell promised. "The safe operation of commercial vehicles is a must on California's congested highways."

"In an effort to encourage voluntary compliance with the traffic laws, the Patrol will provide periodic informational releases explaining these traffic laws in more detail." the Commissioner concluded.

NONE OF THE NEIGHBORS OBJECTED . . . To the racket as thirteen families on Cameo Drive had the time of their lives Saturday evening when they blocked off the street and held their second annual block party. Headquarters for the affair, participated in by an unknown number of children, was the Joseph Cosmo home. (Incidentally, Mrs. Cosmo's maiden name was Topper.) Tables were set up in the street and the men barbecued hot dogs for a potluck dinner served by their wives. After dinner, everyone danced to the music of a record player until about 11:00 p.m. with no complaints from the neighbors since they were all at the party. Couples shown dancng are, left to right, Frank and Edna Woehl, Joe Cosmo and Evelyn Cassiday, Edith LeBow and Jay Sneed. Children snapped in one of the rare moments they paused for breath are, left to right, Gail Cosmo, Michele Le Bow, Barbara Miles, Kathy Anderson, Jimmy Cassiday; back row, Kenny and Jeff Miles. ## Can You Top This?

Several days ago I overheard the following conversation between my 13-year-old daughter, Linda, and her best friend, Delores, as they discussed life as lived several centuries ago.

"Delores, did you know that centuries ago it used to be a crime to take a bath or wash and if you did you were put in jail?"

"Well for heavens sakes," said Delores in a puzzled tone "how did they ever get clean?"

"O," replied Linda, "they just wiped off with cologne, that's why it's called Colonial times."

Our advertising manager, Joe Anello, who hauls a group of children to school each morning, reports this conversation on the first day as Christy Chapman got into his car:

"Christie, I hear you've got some new cats, Are they going to have babies?"

"They can't," said Frankie Doetsch, "They're boy cats."

"O, yes they can," declared Christy trumphantly, "there's a tomcat running around our neighborhood."

Driver's License Expiration Date Confuses Many

The new procedure for issuing drivers' licenses with the expiration date on the driver's birthday, effective yesterday (September 11) does not change the expiration date on millions of outstanding drivers' licenses issued prior to September 11.

Many motorists have misconstrued the application of the new law, according to the California State Automobile Association, and erroneously believe that they should apply for renewal of their driver's license on their next birthday.

The renewal date for all drivers' licenses issued prior to September 11 remains as specified on the licenses.

Under the new merit system, the applicant for renewal with a good driving record will receive a license good until the fifth birth date after application for renewal. Hereofore, all licenses were issued on a four-year basis from date of issuance.

An applicant whose record shows a conviction for two or more moving violations within the previous two years gets a license that expires on the second birth date after application for renewal.

The new law also sets up an incentive for applying for renewal promptly. An applicant applying for renewal more than 30 days after expiration will receive a license good only until the third birth date after application, and also will be required to take the driving test. Application may be made as early as six months before expiration without affecting the anniversary date.

Those making their first application for a California driver's license will receive one good until the third birth date after application.

Indian Village Shown at Fair

A typical Indian village, complete with burning bonfire, is the main attraction being featured during the Red-Men- Pocahontas day today at the Santa Clara County Fair.

The exhibit, arranged by America's oldest fraternal order, portrays an outdoor setting made life-like with costumed chiefs and Indian maidens. An afternoon program and TV showing will recall the fraternity's part in early America's fight for freedom. Indian relics from nearby areas and Indian art in the making will be on display all this week.

Twenty-one tribes and councils of the order in Santa Clara County, headed by Mrs. Paul Munson, sponsored the booth.

Women At The Wheel

CAR CHECKUP—Most women drivers are inclined to think that mechanical matters are pretty much beyond them. But the California State Automobile Association points out that there are many important things which a woman can—and should—regularly check. Among them: horn, windshield wipers, all running lights and directional turn indicators and steering wheel for excess play. And when going to your service stations, remember GOWAB—gas, oil, water, air pressure of tires, and battery.

Cambrian 4H Club Elects Officers

Friday night was election night for the Cambrian 4H Club. New president of the club is Nella Randolph. New officers on her staff are Diane Shields, vice president; Mary Wise, secretary; Billy Wise, treasurer; Katie Henley, sergeant-at-arms; and Judy Johnson, reporter.

During the meeting at the Cambrian Youth Center, Dale McClintock reported on the 4H Club convention she attended at Davis in August and it was announced that there will be two meetings for new members; the first September 27, and the second October 11.

The committee in charge of the county fair booth gave a resume of their plans and said the booth was set up Saturday.

For Every Dollar of Taxes

We understand that The Press has been subjected to criticism from some quarters because we insist upon emphasizing the importance of the taxpayer getting a full dollar's worth of education for every dollar in taxes.

We have been accused of taking pot-shots at the present educational program and the educators indiscriminately and that we are condemning the teachers and the system for all the ills that exist today.

We have even heard rumbles to the effect that we "have it in" for teachers and will lose no opportunity to lambast them.

Ordinarily we would pay no attention to such grumblings and charge it up to ignorance on the part of critics and let it go at that.

But the case is somewhat different in this instance for it would seem illogical and inconsistent to use "ignorance" when dealing with education and educators.

Therefore, we ought to try to set the record straight.

The Press realizes the importance of education, generally and specifically, to all America as it applies to both the present and future generations.

We have claimed repeatedly that this country is dependent on its schools and teachers and that we cannot allow our citizens to be short-changed in any way whatsoever by impractical budget-balancing. The kids of this country are the most important product in the atomic or any other age.

But we also must be realistic about it.

And nothing emphasizes realism as much as a tax bill.

Even if we were not in the newspaper profession, it would still be obvious to us that school taxes take 60 per cent of what we shell out in property taxes in this county. So aside from the type of education that is being offered, which is an academic question if there ever was one. the question of education today is a very practical one to all of us.

There is nothing more practical than trying to make the dollar stretch.

Your editor has done a little figuring and in his own individual case estimates that at least one dollar of what he makes per day goes for schools on his county property tax bill and that about two dollars each day of his salary is earmarked for county property taxes in which of course, is included all the taxes for the various districts etc. of the County and City.

Inasmuch as your editor does not consider himself anything but an average tax payer, it follows then all who pay taxes have a similar and considerable financial stake in the schools. (We might add that if one was paying off a contract for a car or refrigerator at $30 per month, the matter would be of vital interest to the guy who was paying the bills. Should there be less interest then in a contract so to speak, for schools?)

This is probably as good a place as any to point out that out of the regular employees on the staff of The Press, eight of them are home owners in the local school districts.

We just threw that it, but we do like to emphasize that the payroll of The Press exceeds $60,000 per year and the people who receive the salaries in addition to your editor are permanent and deeply concerned with the welfare of their community of which the schools are of utmost importance.

The Press has not yet advocated the "four-quarter plan" for schools.

We presented an editorial recently in which we suggested that an impartial study of the situation be made.

When at least one new school each year is being built and ALL the schools are idle for three months each year. it seems to us that it makes good sense to look into the matter to see if it was economically sound to get more use out of a tremendous investment.

May we repeat that we are not yet fully convinced that the so-called "four-quarter plan" is any kind of an answer to a difficult situation. But we feel very strongly that every means should be explored to the end, so that the taxpayer will get a full dollar's worth of education for every dollar in taxes.

Is there anything wrong with that philosophy?

By John D. Blaine

One day there appeared in my justice court a young woman of about 35 on a strange errand. She wanted to be responsible for the payment by instalments of a traffic fine and damages for a customer of her restaurant for a traffic violation committed within my jurisdiction.

Total to pay was $300. She agreed to collect from the young man and pay my court $50 a month regularly until all was settled in full.

I was considerably relieved. Instalment collections in fine and damage were often a headache.

I asked many questions, and it came out that the young man was one of about 50 unmarried men this young woman was sort of mothering as part of her service in operating a restaurant in San Jose.

The story of how she got into this business was in itself interesting. She had been working for this restaurant which was poorly managed. To save the business she had bought it. Shortly after buying it she had become seriously ill and had spent weeks in a hospital. She got back to work in debt $6,000. But she had paid off.

She was the head of a family of three, herself and two brothers, a high school boy and a youth supposed to be attending San Jose State College. The brother had only pretended to be at college. In reality he had been loafing around town.

Every school morning for a month she had taken this brother by the hand and led him to college. Four weeks of this treatment convinced her brother that she meant business and that he had better mean business. There was no more trouble.

Since the instalment payments were spread over six months and she came only in the evenings and always alone, I had plenty of opportunity to hear her story rather fully. I encouraged her to talk and got from what she said quite a thrill. She always had something to relate about the personal problems of her customers. They were a rough and ready lot and prone to difficulties.

On the evening she called for the last time I asked, "In helping your patrons with their personal problems what do you get out of it?"

In a tone of strong conviction and satisfaction she replied in just three words, "I have myself."

I looked at this young woman in astonishment. What could be more final, more complete, leaving nothing to ask for? "I have myself."

Over the years since I heard those three words I have made them a center for a gathering of related ideas.

"Men do good to make themselves better."

"Every man is the father of himself."

"Virtue is its own reward."

Some years ago when the great Dr. Albert Schweitzer visited our country he was asked to contribute an article to Reader's Digest. He chose for his subject "Our Second Job." Our second job, in his view, is to be constantly alert to the good we can do incidental to the daily contacts of our first job.

The young woman of my story was demonstrating the second job idea remarkably. But in her case, as in every case, there was the question of appreciation. I knew a man who began well but eventually became extremely bitter. What good he did was not in his view rightly appreciated.

When good is done what is the meaning for the doer? Does the individual do good to make himself better? As the father of himself has the man a child to be proud of? If virtue is its own reward is the reward pleasant?

Perhaps one thing is certain. Perhaps the meaning of what good everybody does is contained in that young woman's three words, "I have myself."

Perhaps here is somthing to recommend to our City Dads and our Planning Commission.

"What can be done about Whitehall St.?"

That was a question without any preliminaries we were asked over the phone this week. It was the start, we are sorry to report, of a very unsatifactory conversation as far as either we or our reader were concerned

It so happened that we are somewhat familiar with Whitehall street, although if any one else at our office had hapened to answer the phone, chances are such a question would not have meant anything.

Our lady friend was quite emphatic about the condition of the street and thought that the City should do something about it. She explained that she had called the street department but could get nowhere.

Our explanation that the street was not the responsibility of the City because it had never been dedicated and that the City could do nothing about it legally did not seem to pacify our irate reader. She apparently wanted us to take our little hatchet in hand and force the City to do something about the street which she says is being used now to a great extent by people going to St. Lucy's. She said the street is full of holes and that it is becoming more dangerous all the time.

We agreed with her that it was a lousy setup and we would be more than willing to crusade for a better street except we happened to know that the City Council's hands were tied on the matter.

—o—

Our caller then wanted to know why something couldn't be done about getting sidewalks along Winchester Road. She said that walking along that busy thoroughfare was dangerous. She wanted to know why the City couldn't put in sidewalks.

We told her that putting in sidewalks was the responsibility of the property owners. But we don't think we went over very big.

We have to admit that, although our reasons that nothing could be done as far as the City was concerned were valid, they did sound pretty lame over the phone.

However, when we suggested that she write a letter to the City Council or appear in person at a meeting, our friend didn't take it too well. She thought that we ought to do something about it personally through the paper.

We appreciate the fact that we offer the only real medium of expressing grievances. But our so-called "crusades" must have a reasonable basis to be effective.

As we said, we didn't seem to get through to her. Consequently this 15-minute phone conversation would not be rated very high on the list of accomplishments for that day.

Or any day for that matter.

—o—

On the credit side, we received another call from a lady with reference to the stuff we wrote last week about bike-riding and bike riders. This call was quite complimentary in a vague sort of way. This time our caller, who claimed she was "an old busy body", thought we had done all right up to a point but that we hadn't gone far enough in condemning the bike riders for their traffic law violations.

"I want you to get after those youngsters who persist in riding their bicycles on the sidewalks," was the way she put it.

"Why just last year," she continued, "I saw a pregnant woman knocked down by a rider right down town."

She gave her name but asked that it not be used (she added that "an old lady like me doesn't need and shouldn't get any publicity"). She chuckled that she had written letters in the past to Sam Hanson, ("Off the Beat" columnist now with the Los Gatos Times-Observer but formerly with the San Jose News) and he had referred to her as a "Campbell Granny".

That's good enough for us.

So, "Granny" we have referred your request to our fellow columnist, Judge John D. Blaine, who is our bike-riding authority.

We expect to have quite a report from him on bike riding, past, present and future, in his "Over the Years" colunm in the next few issues.

—o—

We have just learned on good authority (from the guy himself) that we have something in common with Sam Reed, principal of Campbell High.

Sam, who right now is in the midst of the hustle and bustle of school opening, has been limping around of late. He told us that he had slipped on a cake of soap while taking a tub bath. As a result he sat down too hard.

Just a few months ago we threw our back out while reaching for a bar of soap in the shower.

Based upon our sad experiences we have talked it over with Sam and are considering giving up baths. They are too dangerous.

But so far it is only in the talking stage.

—o—

How many times have you considered calling the police when friends or relatives didn't arrive on the time specified?

We all know that supposedly "no news is good news" but that's advice for others or for the birds. At least that's the way Mrs. Robert Locke, wife of the chief of police, felt a few weeks ago.

Bob had gone hunting one weekend and had specified the time he would be back. When the time specified had come and gone by some length, Merle did what we all have wanted to do on many similar occasions, but generally have not because we are not as close to the guys in question.

She called the guys who work for Bob . . . the cops.

Through the network of police communication, she soon had her answer.

Bob had not yet left the scene of his hunting.

There is a moral in this some place. (We'll see if we can find it for you by next issue.)

The billions spent for foreign aid and Mutual Security may have paid great dividends in preventing war but dollar for dollar the most effective program has been one which our government had very little to do with. I refer to the American Field Service program of International Scholarships.

The program was started eleven years ago by American Field Service volunteer workers, and except for a small fraction sponsored by the State Department, it is financed and carried out by volunteer contributions and work by local communities. Each year the program has grown until this year 750 students from all over the world spent eleven months in American homes attending American High Schools as members of the Senior classes. Individual High Schools, often assisted by service clubs, each put up $650 as a scholarship. Foreign students were selected and were invited by patriotic Americans to spend a year in their home as guest members of the family. Only personal expenses were borne by the visiting student.

Following the year with an American family the student, usually with reluctance, returns to his homeland and then reports freely and frankly to his countrymen about his impressions of life in the United States. Conversely, American students are given the same opportunity.

A short time ago seven students, en route home to Finland, Norway, Brazil, France and Belgium after living in Santa Clara County for a year visited me in Washington. Never have I been so impressed! Hardly able to supress tears which were close to the surface because they had to leave, all of the students were emphatic in their praise of our country. Each of them said they hated to leave their California "families". All of them were amazed at how wonderful American teenagers were and stoutly resolved that they would singlehandedly correct the wrong impression that American movies had given the world about our young people. It seems that they had all seen "Blackboard Jungle" and thought all teenagers in America would be like characters in the movie. Almost unanimously they liked our schools and sports programs though they did admit that foreign schools had better discipline and provided better opportunity for talented students and less for the average students. Equally unanimous was their opinion that we had a lot to learn about traffic handling from the Old World.

I can't say enough for those kids who found new "homes" in California and I can't praise the American Field Service too highly. All the tea sipping career diplomats in the world won't promote the good will and understanding in fifty years that those kids will achieve in five minutes of conversation with their friends at the foreign equivalent of the corner drug store. We can't make a better investment than supporting this privately operated program. My hat is off to sponsors of the movement, and the generous patriotic Americans who have opened their homes to a wondering youngster--and returned him to the rest of the world as a lifetime ambassador for peace!

LAW IN ACTION

CRIMINAL TRIAL

After the court swears the jurors in, the prosecutor in a criminal case tells them what he plans to prove, and calls his first witness. As the prosecutor gets through with each witness, the defense counsel may cross-examine him. Cases such as a recent English murder trial are often won on cross-examination, where a witness' story may fall to pieces.

1. The prosecution's witnesses must prove that somebody has committed a crime. This is the corpus delicti.

No court can convict an accused of robbery or murder, for example, upon confession alone without independent proof that the crime was committed.

2. A lawyer may have to "lay a foundation" for certain evidence. He cannot put a confession in evidence, for instance, before he has shown that it was made freely.

3. When the court has heard all the evidence, each side sums up or "argues" its case to the jury.

4. The judge then "instructs" the jury on the law to apply, and sometimes discusses the evidence in order to help the jury reach a just verdict.

5. The jury's verdict is a finding of fact and not a "judgment." The judge ordinarily makes the judgment within twenty-one days after the trial. In a criminal case, it is called the "sentence"—death, imprisonment, fine, etc.

6. Meantime, as a rule, the judge asks the probation officer to look into the case and report after talks with the accused's friends, kinfolks, former employers, or teachers.

7. Should the judge grant probation, the accused reports to a probation officer for the term, and then asks the judge to end his probation.

Without probation, our laws fix minimum and maximum terms of imprisonment. After the prisoner has served long enough for the Adult Authority to study him, it sets his sentence within these limits.

A prisoner may also merit time off for good behavior.

PLANNING ON PLANTING?

GARDENER'S CHECK LIST

By The California Association of Nurserymen

REMINDERS

1. Ask your local nurseryman about the effective chemical soil conditioners that have been developed to take the backbreaking work out of gardening.

2. Rhododendrons, Gardenias and Azaleas sometimes persist in having yellow sickly leaves even after fertilization. This condition can frequently be corrected by applying iron sulphate, or iron chelates.

3. If you want to change the color of your hydrangeas, ask your nurseryman how often you should add chemicals. Aluminum and iron suphate applications change pink flowers to blue and keep blue and violet flowers from becoming pink.

Plant container-grown chrysanthemums now.

5. Transplant or plant new bearded iris.

Shrubs From Containers

California gardeners, who enjoy so many of nature's blessings, count the ability to plant shrubs any time of the year as one of the greatest.Unlike our eastern neighbors who cannot even dream of planting during their hot summers and cold winters, we Californians can transplant shrubs from containers on almost any day of the year.

Planting from containers is becoming increasingly popular in California for many reasons. One of the most important is that it is just as simple as planting from bare root and shrubs often thrive better.

The plant in a container carries much of its environment with it to the garden. All the gardener then needs to do is be sure that the soil into which the roots will stretch for food is a healthy mixture.

After the gardener selects his plant he should request the nurseryman to cut down the sides of the container to facilitate removal. If the home gardener does not intend to transplant immediately, however, he should make other arrangements for having the container sides cut.

At home, the gardener should first prepare the soil into which he is going to place the shrub by mixing the soil from the hole with peat moss and humus. A mixture of one-third soil, one-third peat and one-third humus is generally acceptable. Inquire from your nurseryman if there is any deviation from this mixture. Making certain the hole is sufficiently large to comfortably accept the ball which surrounds the roots of his shrub, the gardener then places some of the soil mixture in the bottom of the hole and then places the uncanned shrub on it. The level of the shrub in the soil should be the same as it was in the container. This can be assured by placing the soil ring on the stalk or trunk of the shrub at ground level. After the shrub has been correctly positioned in the hole, tamp the dirt mixture around it firmly and then water sufficiently to settle the soil and to remove air pockets.

Another reason for the popularity of container transplants stems from the fact that they can be moved any time during the year. This makes it a simple matter for a home owner to follow his landscape plan gradually, instead of having to do it all in one month. This is a great advantage for those gardeners who have only a limited time to devote to the garden. And for the new home owner this is ideal since he can begin his landscaping at any time during the year and continue gradually as time and budget permits.

Another advantage of buying shrubs in containers is that they need not be planted at once. By caring for them in the container until you are ready to plant, then, you can carefully select the area which has the proper sunlight and exposure the new shrubs require.

Walking into his local nursery to select the shrubs for his home can be quite a treat for the gardener. Nowhere can you get a better idea of foliage color and shape. And for selecting roses, camellias or other flowering shrubs, what a joy to wander through the different varieties and colors to choose the ones he prefers! During the blooming seasons of California's favorite shrubs, local nurseries carry large selections of the different varieties in one-gallon and five-gallon containers.

Trees With Flowers

Nothing is so cheery on a dismal, rainy April day than the sight of a graceful tree in full bloom. Any California gardener can add this brightness to his spring garden because of the small size and adaptability of most flowering trees.

Local nurseries stock many varieties of flowering fruit trees such as crabappel, plums, peaches and apricots. Each has climatic preferences, the purple-leaved flowering plum being the most tolerant. The flowering fruits thrive in all regions outside of the desert, but they flower best in areas with reasonably cold winters.

Southern California gardeners should inquire at nurseries for the Bauhinia Orchid Tree. This beauty has two or three inch rose colored flowers which resemble Vanda orchids. Other choices are the Calodendrum Capense, especially suitable for Southern coastal regions with flowers of a rosy lilac hue blooming in great clusters; the many varieties of Acacia and the equally numerous Eucalyptus tree. The Scarlet flowered gum, the Red Flowered Mallee and the Pink Flowered White Iron Bark are all popular Eucalyptus choices.

In addition to the popular flowering fruit trees, some of which furnish fruit as well as beauty, there are many lovely deciduous shade trees which produce lovely spring blossoms. Among these are the Silk Tree, the hawthorns and the dogwoods.

Whichever flowering tree is chosen from the nurseryman's stock, the home gardener will find it to be a versatile, attractive addition to the landscape. Since these are small trees, they can be planted close to the house to give shade and spring colors. Many gardeners find it desirable to put these lovely trees in containers or in decorative planter arrangements that suggest containers.

Besides adding spring color to the landscape, the flowering trees are ideal for providing indoor cut branches for decoration. To get the best effect for indoor cuttings, the gardner should select branches which are mostly still in bud and then allow them to bloom in water vases indoors.

Automobile Association Warns

School Opening Emphasizes Need For Safe Driving Practices by All

With the opening of schools, drivers need a refresher course on safe driving practices near schools, says the California State Automobile Association.

First to be pointed out is that although a new law, effective on September 11, raises the legal speed limit in the vicinity of a school from 15 to 25 miles an hour when children are going to or leaving school and during lunch hours and recess periods, even three, five or ten miles an hour can be too fast, and therefore illegal, when conditions do not warrant such speeds.

The new speed limit is a realistic recognition of traffic movement as it actually exists adjacent to school grounds and not an invitation to relax vigilance or go faster than it is safe.

No Double Parking

Double parking is always against the law and also dangerous, especially near schools. It forces children getting in or out of an automobile to walk between cars parked at the curb, a practice against which school and safety authorities constantly warn.

"The AAA motorists' organization points out that few persons, surprisingly, realize it is never permissible to drive or park in a school yard, except in a designated parking area. The reasons are obvious enough, yet it is a rule commonly disregarded."

"Stopping across the street from a school and allowing children to cross in the middle of the block can be a short-cut to sudden tragedy. This practice is made even more vicious by letting children out on the traffic side of the automobile," says the AAA.

Driving Misdemeanors

The list of driving misdemeanors around schools can be lengthened.

Parking in crosswalks, thus nullifying efforts of School Safety Patrols to protect their classmates.

Holding social visits in the parking space at the school and obstructing others from driving up to leave or pick up their children.

Driving carelessly around corners without signalling or watching the signals of School Patrols to their charges. It is never lawful to make a right turn against a red light after stopping when doing so interferes with the movement of pedestrians. When school children are at the crossing, a driver should never make a right turn against a red light.

All rules and laws concerning safe driving practices near schools can be summed up in the admonition, "Children should be seen and not hurt."

Heavy pruning to get the best display of blooms from flowering fruits since blooms only appear on new wood. Other flowing trees need to be pruned for shape only.

Zelkova

If you garden in an area which because of extreme climatic or soil conditions, supports only a minimum of plant life, the Sawleaf Zelkova is your best bet for a tree selection. The Zelkova is a handsome shade three that canreally "take it". A native of Japan, the Sawleaf Zelkova tolerates extremes in temperatures, has been grown in altitudes of 4000 feet and pays no attention whatsoever to winds or drought. Further testifying to its hardiness, this tree grows in alkaline soil.

However, for all its durability, the Zelkova is an attractive, broad, round-headed tree, much admired for colorful autumn foliage. Its dense, dark-green, elm-like leaves turn a rich dark-red or dullish red-yellow in the fall.

The Sawleaf Zelkova (Zelkova serrata), available at local nurseries throughout California, is a heavy-foliaged tree with large, wide-spreading branches which start their spread a few feet above the ground. Because of its lowness and thickness, this makes an excellent windbreak or soundbreak tree. The same heavy foliage makes it an ideal shade tree which, like most deciduous shade trees, lets the much-desired sun, shine through its leafless branches in the winter.

The Sawleaf Zelvoka is an exceedingly easy tree to maintain. It requires no watering or special feeding and only occasional pruning to shape when it is young. It is best to prune it in the fall.

Zelkovas which have been growing for many years in California testify to the disease and pest resistance of this variety. However, the wise gardener will take the precaution of an occasional oil spraying.

The handsome Zelkova grows rapidly to heights of 50 to 90 feet and spreads widely to the same distance. This great spread makes it ideal for large areas.

Firemen Want Rodeo Fan Survey

Directors of the San Jose Firemen's rodeo request that those holding fan survey sheets received in free programs at the rodeo this year return them no later than November 1.

The purpose of the survey is to find out just who and what rodeo fans would like to see at the firemen's rodeo next May. Results could prove valuable in the way of free tickets for those fans selecting winning combinations of contract acts, performers, and so forth.

The sheets should be mailed to 301 S. Eighteenth Street, or left at any of the San Jose city fire houses.

Like any good businessman Mr. Sherman Tryon of the Tiny Tot Trade In Shop at 338 West San Carlos in San Jose, is interested in holding down his operating costs. That's why he does most of his own repair work around the shop.

But when it comes to plumbing, Mr. Tryon says, "I call on the man whose business it is to see that it's done properly, a licensed plumbing contractor. Not only does it save time and money in the long run, it costs less than what I could have done it for myself, and I know it's done right."

School Time Calls For Extra Care in Driving, Says CHP

School time calls for extra caution by motorists and attention to the traffic laws pertaining to school zones warns the California Highway Patrol.

"Once again the shouting and running of boys and girls going to or from school will fill the air five days each week," stated Patrol Commissioner B. R. Caldwell. "Many of these youngsters will be attending school for the first time or going to a new school.

"Either way, with new surroundings they are apt to make mistakes such as dashing across the street without looking or slipping out from behind a parked car," Caldwell reminded. "Only utmost caution and strict adherence to the traffic laws will help you avoid striking a school child with your car.

"The new speed law, effective September 11, 1957, permits a top limit of 25 miles per hour when passing a school building or the grounds thereof while children are going to or leaving such school during opening and closing hours or the noon recess period," he said. "The 25-mile limit also applies when passing school grounds which are not separated by a fence, gate or other physical barrier while such grounds are occupied by children.

"Give the children a break and remember, they frequently do the unexpected," he concluded. "Make every school zone a caution area and help us protect our youth."

Are They Neglected

Survey Answers Some Questions On State Program for Blind Aid

Are blind persons in California neglected?

This is but one of many questions asked repeatedly about blind persons in this state, according to the State Department of Social Welfare under George K. Wyman, Director.

The department recently announced results of a survey about blind persons in California who receive public assistance that answers a number of questions about the situation.

The enormous and rapid growth of California has led some people to think that this state is draining off the blind from other states. That is not the case, according to the survey. In fact, less than 8.5% of the blind receiving aid have lived here less than 10 years.

Here for 10 Years

The vast majority of recipients have lived here over 10 years, in fact, the average length of residence is almost 32 years and more than 15 per cent of the recipients have lived in California over 50 years.

The survey chart of California's population and Aid to Needy Blind caseload trends over the past 10 years revealed that the blind caseload expanded at a rate more rapid than the general population for the first six years. Thereafter the caseload increased proportionately to the general population.

The rapid increase in caseload in the first six years of the decade undoubtedly reflected the postwar readjustment in industry with resultant curtailment in employment opportunities for handicapped workers.

The department claims the work and employment factor will always be low, except in periods of emergency, due to the higher ratio of women on the rolls and also the high average age of all recipients. The overall average age is more than 68 years even though there are recipients as young as 16 years. The men's average age is slightly less than the women's, with the average age for men about 67 years and for women about 70 years.

The factor of advanced age plus the handicap of blindness means that economic rehabilitation for many recipients is very remote.

Caucasian Descent

The survey revealed that most recipients, 81 percent, are of Caucasian descent. However, minority groups are represented a little more heavily in the caseload than is true for the general population. This occurs in part because the incidence of blindness tends to be higher among certain minority groups and because economic need is greater.

The rate at which income can be earned is often tied to the amount of education the person has obtained. In this program the recipients who have completed one or more years of college tend to be in the older age groups, 40 years and older. This is due in part to the fact that blindness usually occurs after people have reached adulthood; i.e., after formal schooling has been completed.

Little Personal Property

While blind persons in California are not neglected, they as a group have little personal property. Over 46 per cent, or 5,560, do not own any personal property.

Personal property in this survey was considered to be either cash, securities, life insurance, burial insurance, motor vehicles and other things of that nature. Clothing, furniture, food on hand and other very personal things were not considered personal property but instead as personal effect that had no bearing on a recipient's eligibility.

According to the survey, for those who do own personal property the average value of such property is only $335. Forty-two percent have less than $200 and only about 5 per cent have $1000 and over.

Cash is the most frequent form of personal property, with burial and life insurance next in importance.

As to real property, homes generally, only twenty-eight per cent have such property. The assessed value of most of the real property is less than $2,000. The largest proportion (almost seventy per cent) of the real property is unencumbered. The less value properties more often tend to be free of encumbrances.

The department emphasizes that because the blind aid program, like other public assistance programs, is based on need, the number of recipients with other income is never great except for those with the constantly-growing Federal Old Age and Survivors Insurance. Twelve per cent of the Aid to Needy Blind recipients receive such benefit payments, which average $37.51 per month.

Adult children help in many cases; 742 recipients get an average of $20.22 from that source and 265 receive income "in kind", with an average value of $22.80.

In the Aid to Needy Blind program recipients can retain up to $50 from earnings without reduction in grant. All other income must be given consideration in determining the recipient's grant, i.e., the amount needed to make income and grant equal the allowed total need. However, no recipient could get more than $99 per month from public assistance funds at the time of the survey. This maximum has since been raised to $110, effective October 1, 1957.

'Cal-Vet' Interest Rises December 1

All war veterans buying farms or homes with "Cal-Vet" loans—including those now under contract—will pay 3½ percent interest beginning December 1, an increase over the 3 percent rate in effect the past 11 years.

State Director of Veterans Affairs J. Marvin Russell has announced that notices to all contract holders have gone in the mail, and the rate increase has been confirmed by the final authority, the Veterans Finance Committee, consisting of Governor Goodwin J. Knight and several top state officials. The committee also authorized another sale of $50,000,000 worth of veterans' bonds on October 23.

Russell pointed out that the low Cal-Vet loan rate has only been possible due to the flexibility permitted under the law, making possible periodic adjustments to the rise and fall of the money market.

"This is the first time an upward adjustment of interest has been necessary," he said. "During the first 23 years of the Cal-Vet program World War I veterans paid 5 per cent interest for these loans as a matter of course. The rate dropped to 4 per cent in 1945 and to 3 per cent in 1946.

Russell revealed that last week eligibility certificates issued by the Department to Korea veterans reached 56,326, and at that point equalled and have since outdistanced — the number of World War I veterans on the rolls. Korea veterans are still establishing eligibility to participate in the program at the rate of 1,200 a month, while World War I veterans' applications have slowed down to around 30 a month.
